

Since leaving the Commission in May 2015 where she worked for 23 years at management level, Dr Lieve Fransen became a senior policy advisor with for various organisations including the CEO of Philips Health and the She heads an expert group and co-authored a high-level report on investing in social infrastructure. This which received the blessing of VP Katainen and inspired the creation of investEU. Lieve is ambassador for technologies and the sustainable development goals and supported Olafur Eliasson in developing a way to increase access to solar light for children in off grid regions in the world. She received life achieving awards for health and human rights globally, and in Senegal and India. Lieve is a medical doctor specialized in infectious diseases, global public health and social policies.

Martin Wolf is chief economics commentator at the Financial Times, London. He was awarded the CBE (Commander of the British Empire) in 2000 “for services to financial journalism”. His publications include: “Will Covid-19 kill off populism”; “Alarm signals of our authoritarian age”; “Covid has exposed society’s dysfunctions”

Seda F. Gürses is currently an Associate Professor in the Department of Multi-Actor Systems at TU Delft at the Faculty of Technology Policy and Management, an affiliate at the COSIC Group at the Department of Electrical Engineering (ESAT), KU Leuven and a member of the Institute for Technology in the Public Interest. Previously she was an FWO post-doctoral fellow at COSIC/ESAT, and a research associate at Princeton University and NYU. Her work focuses on privacy enhancing and protective optimization technologies (PETs and POTs), privacy engineering, as well as questions around software infrastructures, social justice and political economy as they intersect with computer science.

Associate Professor Tom Daly is Deputy Director of the University of Melbourne School of Government, where he spearheads the School’s ‘Renewing Democracy’ and ‘Governing During Crises’ research themes. He is also Director of the global online research platform Democratic Decay & Renewal (DEM-DEC) and a member of the International Coalition for Democratic Renewal, which gathers policy leaders worldwide, including Nobel laureates and thought leaders. His current project, COVID-DEM, was launched in April 2020 and focuses on curating and publishing analysis of the impacts COVID-19 is having on democracy worldwide. COVID-DEM is now part of International IDEA’s Global Monitor on Covid-19's Impact on Democracy and Human Rights.

Nuria Oliver is Chief Data Scientist at Data-Pop Alliance, Chief Scientific Advisor at the Vodafone Institute and co-founder of ELLIS (The European Laboratory for Learning and Intelligent Systems). She was the first female Scientific Director at Telefonica R&D (2007-2016) and the first Director of Research in Data Science at Vodafone globally (2017-2019). With over 25 years of research experience in Artificial Intelligence, Human Computer Interaction and Mobile Computing at MIT, Microsoft Research, she advises universities, governments and institutions like the European Commission and the World Economic Forum on Artificial Intelligence and Big Data. Her work is well known with over 160 scientific publications that have received more than 18,000 citations. She is co-inventor of over 40 filed patents and a regular keynote speaker at international conferences.

Wieslaw Bartkowski is interaction designer and complex system researcher. Head and co-founder of CreativeCoding.pl postgraduate studies crossing the boundaries between art, design, science and technology in an anti-disciplinary way. The creator of the term and manifesto “The Matter of Code”, proposing a new look at the code - the source text of a computer program - as a type of material that can be shaped by experience, just like in the case of a sculptor learning to shape wood or stone, or a ceramist forming clay.